NOTES:

Entry & Exit Requirements: Kuwaiti officials are extremely sensitive about travel to Iraq. There have been instances in which Americans, especially those of Iraqi descent, have been detained for questioning at ports of entry/exit. Americans seeking to travel to Iraq through Kuwait have been turned around and/or detained. The border between Iraq and Kuwait closes without notice, stranding Americans on either side of the border.

Kuwaitis and non-Kuwaitis, including Americans, who have been charged with criminal offenses, placed under investigation, or involved in unresolved financial disputes with local business partners are subject to travel bans. These bans, which are rigidly enforced, prevent the individual from leaving Kuwait for any reason until the matter is resolved. Expatriates have been detained in Kuwait for cases with seemingly little or no evidence or legal merit. In the case of financial disputes, it may be possible to depart the country if a local sponsor pledges funds equal to the amount in dispute. Once such legal orders are in place, the U.S. Embassy can assist American citizens in obtaining legal representation, but cannot overcome the ban on exit from the country until the matter is resolved.

Safety & Security: US citizens are encouraged to enroll in the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program, to stay current with the latest safety and security announcements dispersed by the Embassy in your area. Your enrollment can also help the Department of State reach your family and friends in case of emergency.

Americans in Kuwait should exercise a high level of security awareness. U.S. citizens should exercise caution, maintain a low profile, and avoid areas where Westerners are known to congregate such as hotels and residential complexes. Terrorists in the past have specifically targeted hotel chains perceived as Western along with a variety of Western housing facilities. Military members, as well as civilians and contractors related to military interests, are also potential targets.

Crime: Physical and verbal harassment of women are continuing problems. The Kuwaiti police accept crime reports at the police station with jurisdiction where the crime occurred. It is advisable that an American citizen be accompanied by a person who speaks Arabic or a local attorney. The Embassy's List of Attorneys is available on the Embassy web site at <http://kuwait.usembassy.gov/attorneys.html>.
