NOTES:

Entry & Exit Requirements: US residents in Malawi are encouraged to enroll in the STEP program (refer to link in Acknowledgements). This program keeps you up to date with important safety and security announcements. It will also help your friends and family get in touch with you in an emergency. Be certain you have applied for the correct visa. Malawian immigration authorities have fined, arrested, and deported U.S. citizens who entered Malawi with a tourist visa or on a visitor's permit and proceeded to conduct other activities inconsistent with their status (e.g., business or volunteer services). Individuals that overstay on their visa, even unknowingly, have been fined, arrested and deported.

Safety & Security: Spontaneous civil disturbances, primarily related to labor and student strikes, occur, but are uncommon. U.S. citizens should avoid crowds, political rallies, and street demonstrations and maintain security awareness at all times.

Crime: Most crimes against U.S. citizens involve property. Residential break-ins are prevalent throughout Malawi and perpetrators of these crimes are usually well-armed and may resort to violence with little provocation. Petty street crime (robbery and pick-pocketing) is common. U.S. citizens are urged to avoid traveling on foot at night, especially in urban areas, as armed muggings and assaults have increased. Specifically, expatriates have been targeted in Lilongwe, and several U.S. citizens have been injured. Even when walking in a large group, city streets should be considered unsafe after dark.

Currency: Any currency declared at entry may be expatriated without further authorization. With bank approval, an individual may export up to $2000 per trip. Otherwise, an individual is not permitted to expropriate currency, and it will be confiscated at the point of departure.

Health: Medical facilities in Malawi are rudimentary and do not meet U.S. standards. For any major medical problems US citizens should consider obtaining medical treatment in South Africa, where advanced medical care is available. HIV infection is endemic in the Malawian population. US citizens are advised to take appropriate precautions to limit the risk of transmission. Cholera is a serious risk and pre-cautions are essentials. Immunization against polio and typhoid is often recommended. Malaria is endemic and exists year round. One is encouraged to initiate treatment prior to arrival. Schistosomiasis (also known as Bilharzia) is present in most lakes and rivers in Malawi, including Lake Malawi. The Department of State recommends against swimming, wading or bathing in fresh water. Tuberculosis is an increasingly serious health concern in Malawi

Special Circumstances: Dress codes against short skirts on women and long hair on men no longer exist, but US citizens may wish to dress modestly, especially when visiting remote areas. Police roadblocks are common and properly documented drivers usually pass quickly and without incident. Foreigners intending to remain in Malawi for an extended period of time are expected to obtain a locally-issued driver's license. Fumigation of Wood Packing Materials:As of this posting Malawi does not impose ISPM15 regulations for wood packaging material (WPM).
