NOTES:

Entry & Exit Requirements: Always carry a copy of your passport for proof of identity and U.S. citizenship should you be questioned by local officials. Employers routinely held employees' passports during their stay in Qatar. A law passed in 2009 formally forbids this practice, and all employers are prohibited from holding employees' passports, except for visa and immigration processing. Qatari law does not recognize dual nationality and requires that Qatari citizens hold only Qatari citizenship and enter and exit on a Qatari passport. Qatari authorities have confiscated the U.S. passports of U.S. citizens who acquired Qatari citizenship through marriage to a Qatari national or U.S. citizenship by virtue of birth in the United States. In several cases, Qatari authorities informed U.S. citizens that their U.S. citizenship had been revoked and was no longer valid. Foreign governments, however, have no authority to revoke the citizenship of a U.S. citizen. If such an incident occurs, please contact the U.S. Embassy in Doha immediately.

To facilitate entry with Qatari Immigration, former resident permit holders should carry a “no objection letter” issued by their former sponsor. Current residents who have a Family Residence Visa do not need an exit permit to leave Qatar. All other sponsored residents who have a Work Residence Permit must obtain an exit permit each time they leave Qatar. This must be arranged by the sponsor. Certain employers may offer multiple entry/exit permits.

Military personnel are subject to different entry/exit requirements and should contact the Department of Defense for specific information pertaining to their travel requirements.

Some HIV/AIDS entry restrictions exist for visitors to and foreign residents of Qatar.

Safety & Security: Incidents of violence are rare, although attacks against Western targets have occurred. U.S. citizens should also avoid visiting labor or work camps, where unrest can occur because of local working conditions or labor grievances.

US citizens are encouraged to enroll in the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program, to stay current with the latest safety and security announcements dispersed by the Embassy in your area. Your enrollment can also help the Department of State reach your family and friends in case of emergency.

Crime: The crime rate in Qatar is generally low. A large police presence is apparent to travelers throughout the country. Local and third-country-national young men have occasionally verbally and physically harassed unaccompanied expatriate women. Reports of petty theft are infrequent but have been growing, including ATM and credit card theft, purse snatching, and pickpocketing.

Local Laws: Some Qatari laws are based on Islam, thus vastly different from U.S. law. Be sensitive to Islamic beliefs and practices and do not wear sleeveless shirts and blouses, halter tops, or shorts. Western bathing attire can only be worn at hotel pools and beaches. Proselytizing is illegal. "Sharing one's faith" with someone of a different faith could be deemed violations of Qatari law, with deportation or even prison time as a consequence.

Qatari police have arrested U.S. citizens suspected of or witness to a crime. Once an arrest is made, only the Qatari Public Prosecution and Courts have authority to grant a release. Upon arrest, you should ask to speak to the U.S. Embassy immediately. If you are not allowed to do so, request that a friend or family member notify the U.S. Embassy. Incidents involving insults or obscene language or gestures often result in arrest and are considered a punishable offense. Drunk driving, public intoxication or other alcohol-related offenses are treated with severity and typically result in arrest, heavy fines, imprisonment, or expulsion from the country.

Health: While medical care is good, doctors and hospitals expect immediate cash payment for health services. Qatar does not allow individuals with HIV/AIDS to live in the country. Medical exams are required for all long-term visitors and residents. Individuals who have HIV/AIDS may be subject to deportation. Please verify this information with the Embassy of Qatar before you travel.

Fumigation of Wood Packing Materials: At this time Qatar does not require ISPM15 regulation for wood packaging material (WPM).

Clearance: Customs are not operational on Fridays except for the purposes of clearing live animals. Normal clearance takes 5-6 days for ocean shipments and 2-3 days for air shipments
